

On December 2, 2025, a seminar was held by the auditing company KPMG Audit LLP for students of the Accounting, Auditing, and Tax Consulting program in the discipline of Auditing and Related Services. The seminar took place in an atmosphere of lively professional communication and deep interest in the practical aspects of auditing and related services. Audit and Tax Consulting“ in the discipline ”Audit and Related Services,” which took place in an atmosphere of lively professional communication and deep interest in the practical aspects of auditing. Company representatives spoke in detail about modern standards for auditing financial statements, key stages of the audit process, and real cases from their practice.

Particular attention was paid to the development of professional skills: analytical thinking, working with documentation, interacting with clients, and using digital tools in auditing. Students were able to ask questions, participate in a mini-analysis of practical situations, and receive recommendations for career development in the field of auditing and consulting.

This format allowed participants not only to expand their theoretical knowledge, but also to understand how the daily work of an auditor is structured from the inside, as well as what prospects this profession offers.

